

To Whom it May Concern:

This letter is in reference to communication towers and the impact these towers have on wild birds. There are more than 138,000 towers and due to these towers millions of birds have died, especially at migration time. Please take time to do a systematic review of communication towers and bird mortality rates. Also, please start a research program funded by the communications industry to identify tower placement, design, and lighting conditions that contribute to millions of bird deaths. Please look into the environmental reviews of existing towers and require that all future towers be subject to rigorous environmental reviews. Finally, please implement immediate action based on existing knowledge (such as voluntary tower siting and placement guidelines developed by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.)

PLEASE HELP TO SAVE OUR COUNTRIES BIRDS FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS TO COME.

Thank you,
Julie Seberry
